

This window has muntins/french panes, also called georgian grids
 -muntins are a decorative bar across & up & down on the window, just for looks
 -french panes are actually individual panes of glass, separated by wood or aluminum frames/mullions
 (we do not clean windows with some types of french pane/muntins)

This window is called "double hung". Both the top & the bottom panes slide up & down. On a single hung window, only the bottom slides up & down. It looks like these muntins are in between the glass. That's called a "dual pane" window. It has 2 panes of glass, with an insulating gas in between. Dual pane windows are more energy efficient and reduce outside noise

This is a "french door". Typically french doors have french panes/muntins. Sometimes they

This is just a "regular" window. No panes/muntins or screens.

Arched windows and doors. The mystery explained...

This is an arch window, some times called an "eyebrow", over three windows, with panes/muntins. Often times, you'll see a long rectangular window over other windows or doors, a transom window. We would count this as 4 pollution. These windows are typically more expensive than single pane, and will sometimes show "fogging". That means a crack in the glass, or somewhere along the seal, lets the gas out and air gets in. This causes moisture to develop, which will give it a hazy, foggy look, or even visible water drops. In that case, your window needs to be replaced.

are a set of 2. Sliding glass doors typically do not have panes or muntins. If all of your windows have french panes/muntins, we would charge more than our average, they are more labor intensive. We count each door panel with sliding doors and french doors.

windows. If you have panes/muntins, we may charge more than the average price. (we do not clean windows with some types of french panes/muntins)

Sorry, there are some types of windows that we do not clean:

no burglar bars, vinyl windows, corroded aluminum frames, old casement windows and some other types of muntins/french panes

Hard water & construction debris do not come off with regular window cleaning
